ACADEMIC PROJECTS

M.Tech. Dissertation: “Optimization of Turbine Back Pressure (TBP) & Initial Temperature Difference (ITD) to accommodate the Penalty of using Air Cooled Condenser (ACC)”

- This project is Industry Defined Research Project “To Reduce Water Consumption and Optimize Efficiency of Thermal Power Plants by Using Air Cooled Condensers” and funded by Royal Academy of Engineering and handled by Newton Bhabha research which is jointly Venture of L&T Knowledge city PT&E division, Vadodara and University of Surrey and Parul University.
- One of the most significant systems which play a crucial role in power production is the cooling systems. Conventional power plants use water as a cooling medium in condenser. But water resource is limited throughout the world and some part of world facing water scarcity now a day. Alternate cooling medium was Air. So, Air instead of water can be used as a cooling medium.

- The aim of the project is to minimize the uses of water in condenser to condensate the steam.

BE Project: “Thermoacoustic Refrigerators”

- Thermoacoustic refrigeration does not require any moving parts or harmful refrigerants in its operation.
- This technology uses acoustic waves to pump heat across a temperature gradient.
- It used electromagnetic loudspeakers to generate the acoustic input.
